Privacy Policy

Wolford College respects the privacy of your personal information and does not, under any circumstances, rent or sell personal information submitted by visitors or students to our site to any outside third party.

Personal information that you submit to this Web site will be used only for the purpose for which it was asked. Identifying information may be both used internally and shared externally (for example, the number of applicants from specific countries).

Wolford College is committed to upholding our students' and visitors' right to privacy. Should you have any questions or suspect a breach of these policies, we encourage you to contact us by email at webmaster@wolford.edu.
